Oral Language at Your Fingertips

“Oral Language at Your Fingertips integrates practical learning strategies from school professionals with evidence from scientific inquiry regarding language and literacy development, instruction and intervention. The purpose is to improve the oral language skills and academic achievement of students from Junior Kindergarten to Grade 3. It is designed to support collaborative dialogue between speech-language pathologists, classroom teachers, and other school staff with an interest in oral language, who work jointly toward improving student well-being and success.”
